Making disability and art work

Flamboyance participatory art project

Flamboyance is an initiative of an Adelaide-based disability arts sector development organisation Access2Arts, in partnership with the Adelaide City Library, as part of Adelaide LGBTIQ+ FEAST Festival.

As a participatory-art project, Flamboyance invites participants to create crocheted Flamingos to include in a collaborative exhibition of the work as part of Adelaide LGBTIQ+ FEAST Festival. The project seeks to connect people and communities in creating art even while socially distanced as a result of the COVID 19 virus.

Using the pattern people are shown how to crochet their own flamingo figure that they can send to Access2Arts to include in an installation of the community's Flamboyance (FYI - The collective noun to describe a gathering of flamingos is "flamboyance"). The flamingos were designed to be quick to make, easy to post and use a small amount of materials.
